

COURAGE

Are you being very courageous? Are you imitating the Good Shepherd who risks his life for the welfare and safety of the flock under His care? I think so!

Although we do not often meet with occasions when we are called upon to risk our lives, we do not lack those in which we must sacrifice our wills so as to yield to the desires of others.....

Spiritual Writings. Pg. 119 L. 70B

It takes courage to climb mountains. It takes courage to back down in a disagreement. It takes courage to admit we were wrong. It takes courage to give in to another's opinions and it takes courage to speak out against injustices. It takes courage to take risks. It takes courage to remain in difficult situations until a solution can be reached.

- Do I have the courage to speak out against injustices?
- Do I have the courage to admit my mistakes and ask for help when I need it?
- Do I have the courage to let go of my opinions and ideas and embrace other opinions and ideas?

Lord, grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can and wisdom to know the difference. Amen.
