

DIALOGUE

I have no doubt but that your dear hearts beat in close union and that you share with one another what you are doing.

Spiritual Writings. Pg. 510 L. 480

To be human is a call to witness to the Love of God through love of one another. Life-giving relationships do not come about automatically, nor are they easy. It is in living and interacting with others that we learn to deal with anger, to forgive, and to build and maintain the self-esteem that is vital to life-giving mission. The ability to love one another and work together is only possible when we can engage in dialogue with one another. Dialogue is a key ingredient in our journey of growth. It requires commitment and honesty. Louise dialogued constantly with Vincent and the sisters.

How consistent am I in dialoguing with those:

- I live with
- I work with
- I socialise with

God, help me to share the good, the painful, and tension-filled aspects of my relationships with those I interact with. Amen.
